State funding concerns new, old board presidents

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Mark Evenson, elected president of the Granite City School Board on Tuesday, and Roy Koberna, the outgoing board president, both say they believe the biggest problem facing the district is continued cuts in state funding.

Evenson was elected president after James Noeth, Carolyn Nemeth and Jeff Parker were sworn in as members of the board.

Koberna, who had not sought re-election, retired from the board after swearing in the members.

In addition to Evenson, the new board elected Pete Novack as board vice president, Parker as board secretary and Noeth as school treasurer.

All the offices were decided on 7-0 votes.

Asked what issues he felt the new board will face, Koberna said continued state funding cuts could force larger class sizes in the district and even end up placing the district on the state financial watch list.

"Right now, Granite City is as financially sound as any school district around. It's one of the top in the area," Koberna said.

"But if the state continues to cut a million dollars here and a million there," Koberna said.

Error postpones Pontoon hearing

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

A public hearing to consider a proposed property tax levy increase by the Village of Pontoon Beach for 1991 (collection in 1992) will not be held on Tuesday, Nov. 19, as had been scheduled.

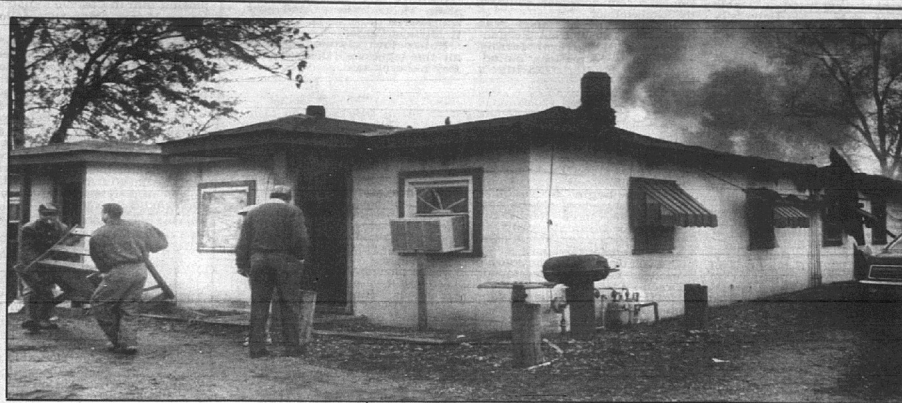

No new date has been set. A miscalculation in the percentage of increase from the previous village and special purpose taxes extended for 1990 will require a new notice to be published, setting a new public hearing date, Village Clerk Mary Warren said Wednesday.

The increase of 83.11 percent, rather than the 45.39 percent listed in the initial notice, was brought to the Village Board's attention by Mike Macek at Tuesday night's Board of Trustees meeting.

A check with the office of Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles on Wednesday showed the higher percentage was accurate and a mathematical error had been made.

Warren checked the figures with the county clerk's office and had been told they were correct, she told the board. "I checked with them twice," she said.

Friends and residents remove what they can from a burning home in Eagle Park on Tuesday morning.

An up-and-down week in Eagle Park

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Perhaps residents of a multi-family house on Watson Street in Eagle Park can take heart in the fact that the Eagle Park Fire Protection District now has a listed telephone number — 452-5810.

When the house on Watson caught fire in the early hours of Tuesday morning, the Eagle Park fire department — in the form of Ed Lee Salmond and his fire truck — responded immediately. The blaze was within sight of Salmond's home.

Salmond requested immediate backup from the Madison Fire Department, which sent two trucks and eight firefighters to the scene at about 4:30 a.m. By daylight, the flames had been knocked down and the Madison firefighters left.

"It was like a reunion," Salmond said. "They were fighting the fire; we were fighting the fire. It was really a beautiful picture. And we almost contained it — I guess about 40 percent burned."

The Eagle Park fire department, made up of Salmond, his son, who is now away at college, and two other members, came under fire from Madison officials this year because it had an unlisted phone number and because they contended Salmond selectively fought fires.

The district receives no tax funds to meet its costs. Salmond didn't deny either charge. He said the phone had been cut off because an unauthorized person had run up more than $100 in long-distance calls. And he said he wouldn't respond to fires involving drug dealers.

Salmond said he had made his personal phone number available to all residents, and effective this week a separate number for the fire department went into service. The house on Watson Street was still smoldering Tuesday morning when Salmond, the entire fire department that day, left town to go to a meeting.

"It might start up again," he said. "But it's a block structure and we soaked the floor enough that it will burn itself out."

Residents who were salvaging belongings from the house Tuesday said they were

Critic wins one over riverboat

A preservationist who took on the gambling partnership raked in overnight results.

A lighted display board and portable posts and chains were removed from the Alton Belle's promenade in Riverfront Park after Bob St. Peters objected to them.

"I'm very pleased with their response," St. Peters said. "It's great. It's good news."

St. Peters sent a two-page letter to Mayor Ed Voumard Jr. Friday describing what he termed three "violations" of an April 1991 agreement between the city and Alton Riverboat Gambling Partnership Inc.

"Either knowingly or unknowingly the riverboat gambling people seem to have lost sight of the fact that the only right they have on the Alton Public Land area is an easement," he wrote.

The display board was removed and was in storage Tuesday morning. Tom Long, managing partner with the gambling group, said.

Plastic poles and chains are also "in the warehouse," Long said, adding the devices were used only occasionally for crowd control.

Long said he expected to sign a document dedicating the decorative concrete promenade, concrete post and metal chain railing, sidewalks and lights to the city by Friday.

"It's not a big issue," Long said.

Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar, left, and his Missouri counterpart, John Ashcroft, sign an agreement to conduct a joint study of building a new Mississippi River bridge.

Edgar, Ashcroft pledge cooperation for new bridge

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Saying the Mississippi River should be a bond that unites their two states rather than a barrier that divides them, Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar and Missouri Gov. John Ashcroft announced a new spirit of cooperation to overcome what Ashcroft characterized as "a national paralysis in Congress" over a pending transportation bill.

The Republican governors signed a joint agreement Tuesday to conduct a $4 million to $7 million study to advise their states about possible locations, design features and environmental impact of a new bridge connecting the St. Louis area with Metro East. The study is expected to take four years to complete.

The cost for the initial stage of the study, estimated at a half-million dollars, will be shared equally by Illinois and Missouri. The time frame and total cost of a new bridge will be included in the study, Ashcroft said.

"This is the beginning of what we hope to be a new bridge across the Mississippi River," Ashcroft said. "Our hopes hinge to a great extent on funding that Congress can make possible if it makes the right decisions on new highway legislation."

Ashcroft said a "Congress afflicted with paralysis" has not yet made a decision on a pending transportation bill which would provide funding (See BRIDGE, Page 2A)

New BAC board is seated

By Jim Haverstick
Staff writer

Long-time Belleville Area College board members Larry Reinneck and Betty Jenner said goodbye to their posts on Tuesday night as new BAC board members took the oath of office.

"It has been fun," Reinneck said. "I have received a lot more than I have given."

Reinneck served as chairman of the board for three years and as vice chairman for three years.

In last week's election, he lost the subdistrict 2 seat on the board to Ted Farmer, another long-time member of the board.

Reinneck said he plans to stay involved in college activities. Jenner wished good luck to the new board members and encouraged them to work as a team.

"I just can't believe it has been 14 years," Jenner said. "I don't resent it but I am not sure I have resigned (myself) to it."

Jenner is a member of the Citizens Committee that filed a lawsuit against the State Board of Elections, seeking to prevent BAC from being divided into election subdistricts. An appeal of the lawsuit is still pending.

She declined to run for re-election because she did not want to compete with two other incumbents for the subdistrict 2 seat. Janet McReynolds, who is stepping down from the board also, did not attend Tuesday night's special meeting due to an (See BAC, Page 2A)

Deputies investigate drive-by shootings

Authorities continue to investigate apparent drive-by shootings at five rural Madison County homes.

Capt. Robert Hertz of the Madison County Sheriff Department said detectives do not believe the shootings were directed at anyone in particular, but were "random and indiscriminate."

A slug recovered from a home in the Wanda area appeared to be of .38 or .357 caliber.

Hertz said deputies have no suspects.

Shots were fired into three homes on Sand Road and another on Wanda Road about 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

The houses are close together, and the shootings occurred about the same time, Hertz said. He is the Sheriff Department's chief of detectives.

No one was hurt in the shootings, but one slug reportedly was recovered about a foot from where a child had been sleeping.

Scent of childhood memories

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Don't be surprised if the scent of roasting turkey brings back a flood of memories of Thanksgiving past.

Odors are our strongest emotional tie to the past, according to Dr. Alan R. Hirsch, a neurologist and psychiatrist who is the neurological director of the Smell and Taste Research and Treatment Foundation in Chicago.

"Certain odors trigger literal floods of past emotion," Hirsch said. "People who have lost their ability to smell tend to be depressed because they are unable to bring back these emotions. As a result, they lose access to those memories."

People growing up in an industrial area like Granite City find that odors like coal dust and wood stoves are likely to trigger strong and vivid memories of childhood, Hirsch said.

He said this is in sharp contrast to smells of nature that trigger the memories of the majority of people born around the turn of the century when America was more rural.

Hirsch said a recent survey of 1,003 people across the country showed that people born before 1920 associated childhood with the smells of pine, hay, horses and sea air.

In people born after 1920, he said, the odors that triggered childhood memories were things like plastic, scented markers, airplane fuel, Vaporub, Sweet Tarts and Playdough.

That change may not bode well for the environmental movement, Hirsch said.

"People behave in patterns based on the past, or their nostalgic memories of the past," Hirsch said.

"So, 50 years from now, when they try to reproduce this idealized past, it will be by using these smells of a man-made environment. What will a place (See SCENT, Page 2A)

Man shot, stepfather charged

A 51-year-old Granite City man has been charged in the Nov. 8 shooting of his stepson.

David Glen Sadler, 51, of the 1300 block of Meridian Street was charged with aggravated battery with a firearm in the shooting of John Claridge, 28, his stepson. Bond was set at $100,000.

Claridge was listed in stable condition at St. Louis University Medical Center on Wednesday afternoon. He was shot in the chest.

According to a police report, officers responding to the Meridian address met Sadler in the front yard. He reportedly told police, "I just shot someone."

An officer discovered a blue Smith and Wesson .32 caliber revolver in Sadler's right rear pants pocket. One shot had been fired from the gun.

Officers then entered the house. Claridge was lying on his side in a semi-conscious state on the kitchen floor.

The front of his shirt was soaked with blood from the gunshot wound. Several family members were present, including Mary Sadler, Claridge's mother, and Tina Brown, Claridge's girlfriend.

Claridge managed to tell an officer that he and David Sadler had argued about his dating Brown. David Sadler then left, returned with a gun and shot Claridge in the chest, Claridge said.

Sadler was taken into custody. Claridge was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center and later transferred to St. Louis University Medical Center.

Police took statements from all the witnesses, Detective Lt. Roy Koberna said.

Farmer, of subdistrict 2, Granite City Robert Maxwell of subdistrict 5, Kay Bennett of subdistrict 4 and Richard Rocher of subdistrict 1 renewed their oaths of office.

The new board of trustees rescheduled the regular November board meeting from Nov. 20 to Nov. 19 for prompt appointment of a new chairman.

Illinois legislation concerning community colleges states that the board must wait 14 days after the election to appoint a new chairman.

to make a bridge study possible. If sufficient federal funds are not available, Ashcroft said, he would consider an increase in the gasoline tax.

"If federal matching funds become available, then Missouri will find the dollars to match," Ashcroft said.

Edgar said he had no plans to further increase the gas tax in Illinois, and he would like to see "a little more of the money sent to Washington" come back to this area.

Citing current and projected congestion on four existing bridges and the "cost of not building a bridge," Edgar said adequate river crossings "continue to be a priority for the Metro East area" and are "absolutely essential to the future economic viability of the metro region on both sides of the river."

In the past year, the Regional Commerce and Growth Association and the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council both issued statements outlining the urgency and need for a new bridge.

According to an RCGA Transportation Task Force report, 153,000 vehicles crossed four bridges (Poplar Street, King, Eads and McKinley) daily in 1989, and traffic volumes are projected to exceed available lane capacity sometime during the next 20 years.

By the year 2000, it is projected, 220,000 vehicles will use the bridges each day, with the bulk of them on the Poplar Street Bridge.

An EWGCC report showed the Poplar Street Bridge, which carries three-fourths of the traffic across the river now, will soon like Yellowstone Park have to offer them."

Turans begin to react to smells at two-days old, he said, and studies have shown that babies six to 10 days old are able to remember and identify family members by smell.

"Even that young, the sense of smell is very well developed," Hirsch said.

"Throughout our lives, odors have a marked impact on the way we behave. The first time we meet a person and decide we like or dislike them, we are reacting as much to the way they smell as the way they look or act. It's just not a conscious reaction."

Hirsch said a scene in the cult film "Harold and Maude," where Maude brings out her collection of vials containing odors from the past, may not be that far-fetched.

"It's already technically possible to package odors for future use, such as 'scratch-and-sniff' advertisements," Hirsch said, and "down the line it just makes sense for someone to exploit the powerful recall possibilities" of odors.

"I can see a kind of scrapbook where along with a photo album you can have an olfactory album of smells," Hirsch said.

"That way, you can re-live your past experiences in a much more vivid way."

$20,000 loss in home fire

A house fire in the 2100 block of State Street on Tuesday caused an estimated $20,000 in damage.

The two-story home at 2121 State St. ignited at 12:20 p.m. Nov. 12.

Fire Chief Jerry Wallace said the resident of the building, Shirley Wiloughby, was home when the fire started. A 14-year-old boy was also present, according to Wallace. Both escaped from the blaze unharmed.

The fire originated in a second-floor living room, Wallace said. The boy admitted he was smoking but denied that was the cause of the fire, Wallace said.

A pump, an ambulance and the Telesquirt apparatus responded to the blaze.

Firefighters were at the scene for two hours, confining flame damage to the room of origin, Wallace said. He said smoke damage was present throughout the building.

Pam Pinkston is the owner of the building.

News in review provides a summary of some of the past week's stories. This column is designed for out-of-town readers who do not receive the Sunday and Wednesday Press-Record/Journals.

A redistricting plan approved by federal court last week that splits Madison County between two congressional districts was criticized by Congressmen Jerry Costello and Richard Durbin. Under the plan, Costello will have the Alton area, Granite City, Madison and Venice while Durbin will have the remainder of Madison County, including Collinsville and Edwardsville.

The plan eliminates the district of Glenn Foshard completely, placing him in Costello's district. Foshard said he was unsure if he would run against Costello.

The president of the Illinois Medical Society said health problems such as AIDS will never be solved unless society starts taking responsibility for its own health care. Dr. Robert Reardon, IMS president, said the public cannot control the practice of medicine and the doctors can not do much about health care.

"The easiest way to keep health costs down is for people not to get sick," Reardon said. He said 80 percent of all illnesses in America can be traced to six causes: obesity, poor diet, illicit drug use, alcohol abuse, tobacco use and sexual promiscuity, all of which the individual controls.

In the case of AIDS, he said, it's time to forget all the "media hoopla and hysteria" and look at the facts.

"Unless you are having unprotected promiscuous sex or sharing intravenous needles, you are much more likely to be hit by a meteor as you walk down the street than you are to contract AIDS," he said.

The scientific basis for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's proposal to spend billions of dollars for removal of environmental lead — including millions for the Taracorp Superfund project here — is once again the subject of heated debate. At issue is the latest definition of "lead poisoning."

Lowering the safe blood-lead level from 25 micrograms to 10 micrograms per deciliter of whole blood — established by the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

A number of experts in toxicology said the results of a major study used by the CDC in its decision were skewed to reflect a preconceived notion of a researcher.

Input sought on Horseshoe Lake project

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

A committee concerned with flooding, preservation of wildlife habitat and economic development in the Horseshoe Lake area is asking for input from local residents about a plan to help alleviate problems in the area.

The Horseshoe Lake Resource Planning Committee will hold a public meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 18, at the Pontoon Beach Senior Citizens' Hall, 3910 Illinois 111.

The purpose of the meeting is to inform the public of the details of the committee's proposed plan to improve the level of flood protection provided in the region.

The committee is made up of 27 area business and political leaders and federal, state and local conservation officials.

It has prepared a plan to recover an approximately 100-acre area of Horseshoe Lake that has filled with sediment over the years, adversely affecting both water-holding capacity and wetland space.

According to conservation officials on the committee, including Wayne Kinney of the Soil Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, a reduction of sediment build-up and a halt to destruction of wetlands would protect many species of birds and mammals which otherwise would not survive.

"About 300,000 tons of sediment are generated in the area annually," Kinney said.

"Some of it is flushed through (to the Mississippi River), but some of it is deposited along the way. That's really the problem."

As an example, Kinney pointed out a connecting canal between Horseshoe Lake and the Cahokia Canal, built by the U.S. Corps of Engineers in 1940 and designed to relieve the Cahokia Canal during periods of high water flow.

Sediment has reduced the connecting canal to only a fraction of its original size and filled in an area of about 100 acres of Horseshoe Lake, drastically hampering the system's usefulness, according to Kinney.

The target area for the project is the area between the Cahokia Diversion Canal to the north and the southern tip of Horseshoe Lake, including Long Lake, Judy's Branch, Burdick Branch, Schoolhouse Branch, Elm Slough and Dobby Slough.

"All planning has been done with an eye toward economic development, flood protection and preservation of natural habitat, to prevent such incidents as the partial destruction of the nesting area located along Long Lake this past summer," committee Chairman Ken Davis said.

"This destruction of valuable wildlife, and other encroachments into our wetlands and flood storage areas, need not occur and are a major concern to the Horseshoe Lake Resource Planning Committee."

The destruction to which Davis referred occurred this summer in the state's largest nesting area for large waterfowl, located a short distance from Long Lake in a grove of trees on Lake Drive near Morrison Road. The rookery is home to several species of birds on the federally protected list and on the Illinois endangered species list.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Prospective purchasers of real estate will often sign a sales contract with certain contingencies in the document. If these contingencies are not met, the buyer can avoid the purchase.

As an example, the contract may provide that the sale is contingent on the buyer obtaining satisfactory financing. The buyer inspecting the property to his satisfaction, or the sale of the buyer's current home. If any of these events specified in the contract do not take place, the buyer can elect not to proceed with the sale.

In one recent case, the buyer signed a real estate contract to purchase a home for $330,000. At the time the buyer signed the contract, he had not sold his own home, which was also valued at more than $300,000. The contract on the $330,000 new home contained a contingency which indicated that the sale was contingent on the buyer obtaining "satisfactory financing." The contract went on to provide that the buyer would be the sole determiner as to whether the financing terms were "satisfactory."

After the buyer signed the contract on the new home, it became apparent that his existing home was not going to sell. In addition, war broke out in the Persian Gulf, and the buyer was fearful regarding the state of the economy and the prospect of owning two large homes.

The bank offered to lend the buyer the money for the second home even though he still owned the first home. However, he was not pleased with the interest rate quoted by the bank. In spite of this financing availability, the buyer elected to cancel the contract, claiming the financing terms were "unsatisfactory."

The seller elected allow the buyer to avoid the contract based on the contingency regarding "satisfactory financing." Had this clause not been in the contract, the buyer could very well have been forced to proceed, with the sale since financing was available.

This is an example of what a contingency clause can accomplish in a real estate sales contract. Many buyers want to sign a sales contract in order to get the property off the market, but they do not want to "close" on the property unless certain conditions are met. The contingency clause in the contract can assure the buyer that his conditions will be met before the "closing" on the property.

Veeder era had big impact

The death of Nicholas P. Veeder on Nov. 9 recalls a notable era in the history of Granite City Steel.

Joining the company in 1934, he remained at Granite City Steel throughout his 41-year career. Named president in 1957, he then served as chairman and president from 1958 to 1968 and chairman and chief executive officer from 1968 to 1975. It was under his leadership, in the mid-1960s, that the company carried out a mammoth expansion that made it one of the nation's most modern producers of flat-rolled steel.

While handling steadily growing production responsibilities at Granite City Steel, he invented one of its patented processes, Strongbarr. The galvanized, corrugated steel product was designed for use in roofing and siding.

Mr. Veeder shouldered major civic duties locally, regionally and nationally. He aided and led such programs as Junior Achievement, the Boy Scouts, the United Way, Civic Progress, National Alliance of Businessmen, Mississippi River Festival, Regional Industrial Development Corp., Governmental Research Institute, Metropolitan Plan Association, Midwest Research Institute, Planned Parenthood, University of Illinois Citizens Committee, St. Andrew's Episcopal Presbyterian Foundation for the Aging, Washington University Sustaining Associates Program and Southern Illinois University's Southwestern Council for Higher Education.

He was closely associated with Ranken Technical College, formerly Ranken Technical Institute, being elected to the board of trustees in 1970, president of the board in 1976, chairman in 1981 and chairman emeritus in 1990.

Mr. Veeder shepherded the 1971 merger of Granite City Steel into National Steel Corp. and later served on National's board and executive committee.

He held corporate directorships with the former First Granite City National Bank, Mercantile Trust Co. (which later became Mercantile Bancorporation), General Steel Industries, American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Co., Pot Industries and Unirac.

At the time of his retirement 16 years ago, it was noted that Granite City Steel had experienced three major eras. The Niedringhaus era was initiated by the company's founding family in 1878.

The John Marshall era began in 1949, when he became chairman less than a month after the death of Hayward Niedringhaus. During his tenure, which ended with his death in 1958, Mr. Marshall brought Granite City Steel unprecedented growth, including construction of its office building, port development and purchase of blast furnace facilities, the latter step making it a fully-integrated steelmaking mill.

The Veeder era began in 1957, when he took over the company. He spearheaded construction of the basic oxygen furnace shop, installation of an 80-inch hot-strip mill, construction with Hanna Mining of the Pilot Knob mine and pellet plant, and the merger with National Steel.

Nicholas Veeder's tireless efforts and his positive impact on the company and this community will long be remembered and appreciated.

Fortune hunters, run for the Hill

(Carol Clarkin writes a regular opinion column for the Edwardsville Journal.)

"Mamas, don't let your babies grow up to be cowboys." Instead, Willie Nelson suggested, let 'em be lawyers and doctors and such. Of course, if they can carry a tune in a bucket and have even the hint of a nasal twang, they could be country western singers or, if gifted athletically, aim for the big leagues.

Mamas, I'd like to recommend yet another career opportunity for those babies: running for Congress. I mean, run for office, with the U.S. Congress as their ultimate goal. There's gold in THAT thar Hill.

Like most of us country bumpkins, I hadn't truly realized the range of perks available to congressmen (and women) until recently, when the House was caught, red-faced and pants down, for bouncing checks at its own private bank and stifling restaurants in the Capitol and House office buildings for better than $300,000 in unpaid tabs.

Presumably, there won't be recurrences of either of these practices. The special banking privilege is more or less a thing of the past, and members will no longer be able to sign for their meals — cash on the barrelhead from now on.

So what? Think of what remains to our House and Senate members. Free parking in underground garages where their cars can be washed for a very moderate fee. Cut-rate haircuts in their own barber shops on the grounds. Government-subsidized meals at restaurants and catering facilities. And, of course, the big ticket items — Congress-people get at least three dozen free flights home per year on business trips as well as discounted rates on train trips to New York.

They also get rush service on passports through the Capitol Hill post office. They have the use of modern radio and television studios, at reduced rates, to keep the folks back home informed of all the good things they're doing for those constituents.

They enjoy the services of official photographers, at public expense. They get books from the Library of Congress, plants from the Botanical Garden, picture frames from congressional workshops, maps from the Geographic Survey, and two framed prints from the National Gallery of Art.

They have $100,000 in life insurance (regardless of their age) with a third of the premiums paid by taxpayers. For their recreation and health, there's a full gym with swimming pool for the House and two exercise rooms for the Senate.

To say nothing of the Capitol medical clinic, staffed by three Navy doctors, to care for them while they're at work and provide physicals, lab work and pharmacy services.

And the use of four private lodges — Camp Hoover, Va., Brinkerhoff Lodge in Wyoming's Grand Teton National Park, the home at Cape Hatteras, N.C., and Little Cinnamon Bay House in the Virgin Islands — all reserved solely for members of Congress, senior administration officials, and federal judges.

And it doesn't stop there. Over and above the annual salary of $125,000, the top seven House and Senate leaders receive between $3,000 and $28,000 yearly for unspecified expenses for which they spend as little as they account. These monies are totally separate from leadership and office accounts, which presumably cover most of their official expenses.

Members and their aides claim that these additional expense monies are used primarily for office expenses, food and refreshments at official meetings and entertaining dignitaries. But there's no public documentation for how it's spent, although they DO have to keep track of how they spend it for the benefit of the IRS only. And, if they don't spend it, they don't have to return it.

Even the president has to account for his expense account. Last year, President Bush spent only $7,000 of his allotted $50,000 expense allowance — but had to return the unspent money to the Treasury, as mandated by — guess who? — Congress.

I'd say those seven House and Senate leaders have made. I kinda liked our own Bob Michel's somewhat bristling report to a reporter as to how he spent his extra-expense money (he gets it by virtue of being House Republican leader). Mostly on food and refreshments at meetings, flowers and gifts.

But, he said, he was never going to make a full public disclosure. "Because you (the media) would make a gosh-darn bonanza out of it."

And why not? A bonanza is just what it is. There is, indeed, gold in that thar Hill.

Improve environmental effect of products

The following opinion piece was written by Catherine R. Mauck, University of Illinois Extension Adviser, Home Economics.

Many stores and companies are making an attempt to improve the environmental quality of their products. We should all support them.

Our support of these progressive companies will encourage others to follow their leadership. What can we do?

We can affect corporate policy one purchase at a time. If a small portion of shoppers were to change buying habits, companies would notice a trend and respond.

Our guest

Start locally. A simple request to the manager of the local supermarket or hardware store, stating a preference for environmentally safe products, will encourage them to stock these items.

Write to a manufacturer expressing concern or support for the company's response to environmental issues.

Keep the letter simple and direct. Voice your concern about the product, or packaging. Don't be angry, sarcastic or threatening.

If the problems are beyond the control of the store owner or manufacturer, find a public official who has the authority or responsibility for that area.

With many environmental issues, we will need to contact local members of a committee, a board, a council or a commission. Elected officials like to learn the opinions of their constituents. Addresses of local officials are listed in the telephone book; state and federal officials' addresses are available at most public libraries.

When you find you can't demonstrate your preferences through your choices, it's your responsibility as a citizen to attempt to influence corporate and/or public policy.

If you're unable to make personal contacts, write a letter. It may take the efforts of only a few concerned citizens to make a difference.

Mother of three needs transplant

TO THE EDITOR:

How many times have we all said, "If only I could live to see my children raised."

I'm sure a lot of mothers have said that very thing. Well, I did live to see my children raised, but I know a lovely young mother who may not get that chance if she doesn't get the bone marrow transplant that she needs.

This young mother of three is a wonderful wife and mother. Her spirits and her hopes are high.

She has a wonderful outlook on everything. A lot of you have probably heard her sing. She has sung in a lot of churches around town.

The doctors told her Nov. 1 that she should have the bone marrow transplant. She has had radiation, chemotherapy and radiation.

Yet, after all of this, her spirits are high and she makes you feel ashamed of yourself for fussing at the cold weather we have been having.

How do you suppose we would feel if we needed a bone marrow transplant and our insurance wouldn't pay for it and the hospital told us that we needed $100,000 up front before they would take us? That is what happened to this young mother.

You know, none of us are immune to cancer. This could happen to any of us at any time. I believe that people should help each other at a time like this.

This young mother of one I am writing about is Gail Niedhardt. Gail has ovarian cancer.

She herself would never ask for help. She only asks for your prayers. That is why I am asking everyone reading this for your support on Gail's behalf.

If you would like to contribute to a trust fund which was set up for Gail, you can mail it to: Gail Niedhardt Trust Fund, Mercantile of Illinois, 200 West 3rd St., Alton, Ill. 62002.

Your support is greatly appreciated.

Many lives could have been saved

TO THE EDITOR:

More than half of the women who die of breast cancer could have been saved if they'd had a mammogram.

It's a shocking fact that too few women take advantage of this lifesaving X-ray, which can detect breast cancer when it's too small to be felt and is almost 100 percent curable.

Mammography has never before been as affordable and accessible to Illinois women as it is in 1991.

Now, both Medicaid and private insurance companies in Illinois must cover the cost of women's mammograms for the early detection of cancer, in accordance with American Cancer Society guidelines. And Medicare offers partial coverage of mammography screening, too.

The time to have a mammogram couldn't be better, or more important.

The American Cancer Society recommends that women have a mammogram every year after age 50, every one or two years between the ages of 40 and 50, and one baseline mammogram between the ages of 35 and 40.

Your local American Cancer Society office can provide you with a free list of approved mammography facilities in your community. Call toll-free: 1-800-ACS-2345.

If you do just one thing for yourself this month, have a mammogram. Give yourself the chance of a lifetime.

Opposing hiring crossing guards

TO THE EDITOR:

I am a Granite City resident and the father of three school-age children. I feel we do not need paid school crossing guards.

As a taxpayer, I would have to pay extra and I don't feel it is necessary.

Every grade school has students as crossing guards. These students are sixth graders. They are properly trained and equipped for the job and they do it very well.

On Madison Avenue, a police officer acts as a guard between National Foods and the high school.

Many main roads have school crossings with lights. There are never any paid school guards on the side streets, only the main roads.

I feel this money could be better spent.

Drivers ignoring school crosswalk

TO THE EDITOR:

Say you're a child walking to St. Elizabeth School tomorrow morning. You reach the crosswalk on Pontoon Road.

You press the crosswalk button (just like Mom and Dad, teachers and everyone else, says you should). You wait until the light turns red and the sign says WALK. You start walking across Pontoon Road because cars will stop for you, right?

Don't count on it, kids. Unfortunately, even with a combination of timing (right before or after school), location (within a few feet of school), a red light, and an adult standing with you on the side or in the middle of the street, our children cannot safely use the Pontoon Road crosswalk.

So how much of a chance can they possibly have when they are on their own or with another child, crossing a street to go to a friend's home or anywhere?

Perhaps the folks who drive through the Pontoon Road crosswalk are not a child's parent, grandparent, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, cousin, neighbor or friend.

Or maybe they are, but they just know that child will stop. Maybe. But maybe not.

Resolution of the "crossing guard issue" certainly demands expediency. As taxpayers here in Granite City, those of us with children at St. Elizabeth's are also affected by this impasse between the City Council and the Board of Education.

But face it. Folks are driving through crosswalks, whether a crossing guard is there or not. And how do we resolve that issue?

Do we need research? Do we need political influence? Do we need a tragedy?

Fire district no place for politics

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to thank the voters of the Long Lake Fire Department District who did not sign the petition being circulated around Pontoon Beach.

(The petition sought to have voters decide whether the fire district trustees should be elected or appointed. The positions currently are appointive.)

Our volunteer fire department was formed around 1950. Now look at it. Don't we have the finest? Aren't we in Pontoon proud of our fire department?

De La Roche Awards dinner celebrates 70 years of special caring

Amid the glamour and glitter of the evening, the 1991 De La Roche Awards dinner had two special purposes.

The first was to honor the 70-year presence of the Sisters of Divine Providence at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City.

The second was to honor the contributions of those who have helped the Sisters in their mission of caring.

The first presentation honored Sister Mary William Haug and Sister Lucia Goecker, the oldest living former administrators of SEMC, as representatives of the Sisters of Divine Providence.

Sister Lucia
Being a Pennsylvania native, Sister Lucia had doubts about leaving her home province in Pittsburgh to join the St. Louis Province in 1933. Sister Basilia eased her mind, reminding her, "If they want you there, they must have something in mind for you."

She was first assigned to teach mathematics at St. Mary's High School in Brussels, Ill. Six years later, Sister Lucia was named administrator of St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Paul Hopper, retired director of maintenance, has fond memories of her. "Sister Lucia was the administrator who hired me in 1946," he said. "She was a shrewd business woman who got the hospital on the road."

During her 11-year administration, a great amount of construction was completed. She also initiated the writing of the hospital's bylaws.

In 1950, in a surprise election, the Sisters elected Sister Lucia provincial. In 1960, she was elected general consultant for the congregation worldwide, earning the distinction, along with Sister Mary Kenneth Kraus, as the first Americans elected to the congregation's top governing body.

Sister Mary William
One of the original founders of the Province of St. Louis, Sister Mary William has been a teacher, principal, hospital administrator, assistant provincial, provincial superior and general consultant.

In 1939, she began a 20-year teaching career. She became hospital administrator in 1952, solving many problems in her four-year administration.

Lou Cable, who has volunteered with Sister Mary William for 11 years, said, "She goes out of her way to be very lovable and warm to everyone she meets."

In 1989, when Sister Mary William was ready to retire, she said, "God has given me a wonderful vocation. I have seen many changes in the years I have been at SEMC, but it is the people who are most amazing. There is a great family spirit here. The associates really live up to the philosophy of the medical center."

De La Roche Awards
The next presentations of the evening were the De La Roche Awards.

Named in honor of Mother Marie De La Roche, the founder of the religious order of the Sisters of Divine Providence, they are presented to those who, in the estimation of the Sisters, exemplify the spirit of giving shown by her.

Mother De La Roche devoted her life to caring for the sick and serving others, treating all with respect and dignity.

Dr. Wilkins
Joining the staff at St. Elizabeth Hospital as a pediatrician in 1965, Dr. George Thomas Wilkins Jr. has dedicated his life to working with children.

"I remember the first time I saw Dr. Wilkins," said nurse Barb Anderson. "He is a tall man, but very gentle with children. The image I have of him is of his big arm cradling an infant in one hand. Sort of like a gentle giant."

Wilkins spent numerous hours performing physical examinations for children throughout his career. He gave sports physicals in Madison and Granite City, and to children for Special Olympics, Salvation Army Camp and the Economic Opportunity Commission Clinic.

Wilkins has served in numerous positions on the Illinois State Medical Society, where he is currently the top official. He is one of eight trustees of Southern Illinois University and has been active with the United Way, Chamber of Commerce, Coordinated Youth Services and local school districts.

"He has been a major influence in the betterment of our community," said SEMC President Ted Ellerman, who has worked with Dr. Wilkins on community projects.

"Although Dr. Wilkins may look intimidating because he is a big man, he has a kind and gentle heart. He has a real sensitivity to people who are less fortunate, and he goes out of his way to help them."

Helen Bergfield
Whether it's formally organizing programs for the SEMC Auxiliary or "cutting the rug" with Ruthie's Ragtime Gals, "Aunt" Helen Bergfield carries her determination and dedication through every stage of her life, the gathering was told.

"Helen is upbeat," said Liz Briggs, fellow Auxiliary member and friend for about 35 years. "She might feel down at times, but she shows it." She has been the backbone of the Auxiliary since 1959. Her first project was the Gift Shop and Coffee Shop, then vending machines and baby photos, and on to any new venture. "Helen is truly the thread that holds us all together," Briggs said. "I have never known her to be unfair. She always looks out for the betterment of the medical center and she has always upheld those standards."

Bergfield reorganized the Mobile Meals program from the application process to final details. She also set up the Medicare Assistance Program for senior citizens who need help filing medical insurance claims.

In the community, Bergfield has worked with Girl Scouts, the Granite City Board of Education, United Way, American Association of Retired Persons, Elkettes and her church. But she always has found time for her family.

"I grew up in an atmosphere of giving," said David Bergfield, Helen's son. "Mom and dad both found time to give of themselves. When mom was involved in Girl Scouts and taught Sunday school, I went along with her on outings. 'She always felt she has so much of herself to give. She has always felt better when she did give. I've always been very proud of my mom. I only wish I could keep up with her.'"

But Bergfield is not all work and no play - she has found ways to help the community and have fun, too. She was part of Ruthie's Ragtime Gals, whose profits were used for Mobile Meals and The American Cancer Society.

"We would perform way down in the hills on Missouri," said Dorothy Vaughn, fellow band member. "There were eight of us. Helen performed even when she didn't feel good."

"I personally owe Helen a lot. After an illness, she was very persistent in getting me back on my feet and out the door when I didn't want to be with people. 'She got me involved in the Auxiliary. I have known her for about 25 years and, in that time, if there was any way she could help anyone, she tried. She has a heart of gold.'"

In 1988, Bergfield received the Suburban Journals and KMOX Women of Achievement award for extraordinary contributions to the community, and the Southwestern Illinois Leadership Council and Southwestern Development Foundation's Salute to Southwestern Illinois award.

Bergfield said she learned the spirit of volunteerism as a child. "I think you have to give of yourself," she said. "I was taught as a child never to pass up the opportunity to help somebody, because it may not come your way again."

Ted Ellerman
A surprise De La Roche Award was given to Ted Ellerman.

Ellerman has devoted the past 23 years to St. Elizabeth Medical Center. He joined the administrative team in 1968, was appointed executive vice president in 1974 and president of SEMC in 1984.

But he and his family were part of the SEMC family many years before this. His mother attended the school of nursing here and Ted was born here.

In 1980, Ellerman was appointed delegate to the American Hospital Association for a three-year term. He has been an officer of the Illinois Hospital Association for seven years, serving first as treasurer. He was named president-elect in 1987, president in 1988 and chairman of the board in 1989.

Other community activities include serving as chairman for the Statewide Health Coordinating Committee of Illinois, Metropolitan St. Louis Hospital Association, Provide, a durable medical equipment business, Providence Occupational Health Services, and the board of HealthLink, a hospital sponsored preferred provider organization.

He has received the 1970 Jaycees' Distinguished Service Award and the 1979 Outstanding Public Service Award from the IHA.

But Ellerman does not let his extra-activities keep him from spending time with his family. According to his wife, Peggy, "Our family is very close. He is really involved with the kids. He's Brett's soccer coach and doesn't miss any of their activities. If he can help it, he may get there late, but he always shows up."

Honoring all who serve
Community service awards were given to those who have given 15 or more and 25 or more years of service to the community through St. Elizabeth Medical Center's medical staff, board of directors or advisory committees.

Fifteen-year community service awards were given to: Sister Dorothy Kiel; Mitch Milonski; Dale Arnette; Charles King; Bill Winter; Bela Dones, MD; Edward A. Doisy III, MD; Eliseo Figueroa, MD; Hemachandra P. Gunawardhana, MD; Michael Rumelt, MD; and Farzana Siddiqui, MD.

Twenty-five-year community service awards were given to: Wallace Brylak, DDS; Robert Blankenship, MD; Geoffrey Miller, MD; Terry S. Randall, MD; Donald C. Schnellmann, MD; Harold Toussaint, MD; and George Wilkins, MD.

Dr. George Wilkins addresses the need for Medicare reform in his De La Roche Award acceptance speech.

Daughter-in-law, Gloria, son, David, and granddaughter, Lori, celebrate the evening with Helen Bergfield, Granite City native and De La Roche Award winner.

Public defender criticizes plan to let prisoners out early

A plan to reduce Madison County jail crowding by letting prisoners out early may get a battle from Madison County Public Defender John Rekowski.

He said he thinks the prisoners' constitutional rights may be at stake.

Rekowski said he questions a release proposal that would allow probation officers, who work for the court, to investigate suspects before trial.

"It's a matter of the court investigating what the court is later going to rule on," he said. "How does a defense attorney or, for that matter, the state's attorney, challenge the court's investigation?"

The program would allow 50 prisoners out of the jail before they go to trial. Investigators who work for the circuit court would check into the prisoners' backgrounds to see if they qualify.

The same court workers would keep track of the prisoners, who could be placed under strict curfew, once they are released.

Rekowski said he will wait to see how the program works, if it is adopted. He added that it would be his duty to challenge its constitutionality if he thinks clients' rights are being violated.

A proposed county budget for fiscal 1992 includes $177,900 for the program. The County Board is expected to take final action on the budget Nov. 20. The fiscal year begins Dec. 1.

The program is designed to allow the release of 50 county jail inmates under strict supervision while they await trial. A county committee seeking ways to alleviate overcrowding and cut jail costs recommended the release program.

Rekowski, whose office represents suspects who cannot afford private attorneys, said he doubts the program will reduce the jail population by much.

"It's going to let out the same people who are being let out already. Now, they will just have 14,000 rules to obey," Rekowski said. Similar programs have been authorized by the Legislature and are operating in several other counties.

State's Attorney William Haine said he's not worried about constitutionality of the program, but he is not a fan of pretrial release. He said the proposal was prompted by a need to save money, but many suspects are a danger to the community and should be in jail.

Haine said the proposal's most positive aspect is that pretrial investigations will provide more information to judges and help identify the most dangerous suspects who should remain in jail.

Mathews to speak Friday at banquet

Martin L. Mathews, executive director of the Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club in St. Louis, will be guest speaker at the second annual "Share the Vision" banquet, sponsored by the Protestant Welfare Association.

The banquet will take place Friday, Nov. 15, at 6:30 p.m. at the Granite City Township Hall, 2060 Delmar Ave.

Tickets cost $8 for adults and $4 for children. Youngsters under age six are free.

way for a pipeline project wreaked havoc on the area and killed more than 100 birds, according to eyewitness accounts.

All residents and property owners in the area surrounding Horseshoe Lake, especially those adjacent to Long Lake and Elm Slough, are being asked to attend the Nov. 18 meeting and offer constructive comments.

Displays, including wetland maps, lists of endangered species, maps of the watershed area and photographs and maps of Horseshoe Lake, will be shown.

Committee members will be present to answer questions and explain philosophies dealing with sediment control and habitat protection.

"We are predicting an extremely high level of development around the Horseshoe Lake area in the next few years," Davis said. "It is important we educate the public, developers and farmers between now and that time."

Kinney said the committee is looking toward a "total resource approach" to alleviate problems in the area, coordinating the efforts of federal, state and local agencies for planning and funding.

"We need the cooperation of the public," Davis said. "Interested parties should come out (Nov. 18) and give us an idea of what we can explore and accomplish."

"Then we can let the officials who have the dollars know that people are interested in eliminating these problems."

HE JUST SPENT NINE MONTHS IN A WARM HOME. ARE YOU GOING TO LET HIM MOVE INTO A COLD ONE?

For your first nine months, life is usually pretty comfortable. You're carried everywhere you go. You don't have to worry about eating. And you're always nice and warm. But then you have to move out. If you're lucky, you end up in another warm home. But if you're like a lot of needy families in Illinois, there's no escaping the cold.

To make matters worse, state government aid to needy families has dropped 40 percent in just one year.

Which is why they're depending on the warmth of people like you.

Your contribution to the Warm Neighbors Fund will help pay their heating bill. We're counting on you to give. And so are lots of needy families.

million dollars there, things can happen. "I don't want to sound super duper and gloom. If the board is able to stay on top of things, it won't be. I think we have been able to stay on top of things so far, but it's definitely getting harder."

Eavenson agreed with Koberna that the new board must "hold the line on every item" in the budget.

"I think there will be major cuts to help the budget," Eavenson said. "Hopefully, there will be no layoffs — I hope we can save enough in other ways."

Koberna said the board will be forced to take a "long, hard look" at both the curriculum and sports programs with an eye toward identifying and eliminating any fat.

Another issue Koberna and Eavenson both said is facing the new board is the restoration of the high school. Both said they expect the issue to be on the ballot in the near future.

"First, I think we will have to take a serious look at the high school," Eavenson said. "I think the board will go to for renovation of the old school, costing about $10 million, instead of $25 million or more for rebuilding."

"But I think we will have to go to the taxpayers and ask, first, 'What do you want to do with the high school?' and second, 'Are you willing to help finance it?' It's going to take a bond issue or a tax increase to do it."

Eavenson said another issue the board will face is whether to start all-day instead of half-day kindergarten, an idea Koberna requested be studied earlier this year.

"We have a very detailed study of the pros and cons from Mr. (Richard) Brinkhoff (director of elementary education)," Eavenson said.

"There are an awful lot of pros and a lot of cons, but it's the wave of the future. But the two cons are the cost and the room. It's an important issue. We need to be doing what's best for students and parents."

Finally, both said the large number of expected retirements in the district could be a challenge for the board.

"It might be fortunate," Koberna said. "Good timing on retirements could mean the board will be able to make a lot of cuts through attrition."

Koberna said his four years on the board "really flew by" and he may miss being on the board even though "it's a lot of responsibility; you have to make a lot of hard decisions and there is a lot of stress. I can't say I envy the new board."

Eavenson said, "I think Roy (Koberna) kept the board headed in the right direction and I'm tickled to death to be able to follow him."

"I think (Noeth and Nemeth) are very sincere about wanting what's best for the district and want to continue the harmony of the past board and continue in the same direction."

Critic

the Alton Area Landmarks Association Inc. and a member of the Citizens Lakefront Advisory Committee, had asked Vourmad to order the sign and the chains removed.

He also asked Vourmad to secure a signed "quitclaim" for the improvements.

Vourmad could not be reached for comment.

Corporation Counselor Jim Seaton said Monday he had hoped to arrange a meeting between St. Peters and City Planner Phil Roggio to resolve the issues.

At that time, the board was still in place.

"I appreciate Mr. St. Peters' interest in it," Schrempf said. "I respect his opinion."

The board was not part of a plan approved by Circuit Judge Gordon Martin and it "blocks a view of the river," St. Peters wrote. The white plastic chains "definitely impede and restrict movement of the general public," he wrote.

However, Long said there was more than one way to read the agreement.

"I think we've got a right to do this and a lot of people feel that the portable board is used to display photographs of passengers boarding the Belle and that it may be used again when the weather warms."

St. Peters said he would continue to monitor the situation. He said he would write Vourmad again if the board or plastic chains reappeared.

"My objective, very simply, let's live by what we agreed to. Nothing more or nothing less."

He praised Long for his action. "Tom Long has been very responsive."

St. Peters said he wrote Vourmad, rather than the partnership, since the agreement was executed by the city.

St. Peters is one of a handful of activists who opposed a city plan to sell much of the park to the state for the extension of the Bismarck Highway in 1973. In 1987, after a lengthy legal battle, a judge approved a settlement that minimized the intrusion of the highway, on the basis of an 1818 deed from Rufus Easton requiring the park to be used for "park and parking purposes."

The Belle's promenade is "the first major development on the Alton waterfront and it will set the course for future development and agreements," St. Peters wrote in his letter to Vourmad.

"It is the duty of the city to assume a professional role and detach itself from special interest groups, and start looking out for the public's best interest," he concluded.

U.S. effort urged on zebra mussels

U.S. Rep. Richard J. Durbin, D-Springfield, said that there is a clear need for a lead federal agency in Washington D.C. to coordinate efforts to control the spread of zebra mussels.

"Without the leadership of a federal agency, it will be difficult and more costly to coordinate nationwide efforts aimed at stopping the spread and minimizing the damage of zebra mussels," Durbin said.

"Currently, a number of federal agencies including the Fish and Wildlife Service, the Coast Guard, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Army Corps of Engineers, are involved in the zebra mussel issue and their lack of communication could lead to duplication."

"I will be contacting Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan in the next few days to ask him to consider this role," Durbin said.

Durbin held a public hearing in Quincy Nov. 11 on the infiltration of zebra mussels into the inland waterways of our country.

Approximately 100 people attended the hearing, which brought together a group of zebra mussel experts to examine the problems these mussels pose to municipalities, industry and recreational users along the Illinois and Mississippi Rivers.

"Zebra mussels are a great threat to our nation's waterways," Durbin said.

"The mussels were found along the Mississippi River for the first time earlier this year and have been sighted as far south as Lock and Dam 26 in Alton. We must act now to stop the proliferation of zebra mussels and minimize their damage."

Zebra mussels cause five general types of problems:

- Physical blockage of pipes, reducing flow capacity.
- Accumulations on a variety of other stable surfaces exposed to freshwater environments.
- Foul taste and/or odor in water from future mussels.
- Introduction of a reservoir for harmful parasites.
- Damage to man-made shells.

Durbin explained that Commonwealth Edison in Chicago estimates that it will spend $17 million to $20 million over the next 10 years to control zebra mussels at its Lake Michigan facilities.

In Monroe, Mich., where zebra mussels caused the city to shut down its water systems for three days, water bills increased by 18 percent and the city spent more than $300,000 to purchase equipment to protect its water systems from future damage.

An electric company in Ontario, Canada, spent $10 million on chlorine to keep mussels out of the power plant's intake pipes.

Durbin explained that zebra mussels can be spread through the transport of larvae downstream or downriver by water currents; by human activity such as mussels attached to vessel hulls or in engine housings; and by waterfowl or other wildlife.

Dr. Bob Sheehan, of the Fisheries Research Lab at Southern Illinois University, pointed out that in order to combat zebra mussels in inland waterways, we must increase research on ways to control the spread and settlement of the mussels.

For example, he proposed researching the effectiveness of induced sterility, a technique which was used to reduce the med-fly threat several years ago.

"It is vital that one federal agency take the lead in coordinating all zebra mussel research and control efforts so that eventually the threat posed by these dangerous mussels is eliminated," Durbin concluded.

unsure whether three or four families lived there, but guessed it was about 12 people.

About noon, the rear of the building's roof burst into flames again. Several neighbors called the Madison Fire Department, but without a request from the Eagle Park Fire Department, the Madison department could not respond.

Salmond said the fire had burned itself out again by the time he returned to Eagle Park on Tuesday evening.

"We had saturated that floor to about 6 inches deep, so anything falling was going to go out," he said.

Mary Duvall had worked 20 years at Knapp Monarch, St. Louis, and 13 years at CPI in St. Louis. She retired in 1985. Relatives and friends helped celebrate the occasion. Many cards and gifts were received at the event.

Those present were: Steven and Donna Hampsey; Ryan Hampsey; Logan and Judy Donaldson; Mike and Winnie Sasyk, all of Madison; Scott Hampsey; Bob and Mavis Bodnieszatz of St. Louis; Chris Hampsey, Mac Murray College, Jacksonville, Ill. Also, Kathy Brown, Springfield, Ill.; Clarence (Cotton) and Vera Duvall, North Olmstead, Ohio; Nadene Bronson, New Haven, Mo.; Lawana Herrington, St. Charles, Mo.; Ira and Mary Lou Zoellner, Bridgeton, Mo. Also, Joe, Peggy, Joe Jr. Obermahr, Washington, Mo.; Bob and Joyce Albrecht, Wood River; Henry "Sonny" and Yvonne Roman of Perryville, Mo.; and Brady and Doris Chandler of Springfield, Mo. Also, Russ and Ruth Smith; Loyce and Treva Phillips; Bob and Jean Zaring; Hubert "Doc" and Helen Hawkins; Joyce Moore; Jim, Rhonda, James, Stacy Mayo; Fay White; Todd Toth and Susan Arner; Lori Osborn; and Gladys Zukas, all of Granite City. Bill Duvall and Brady Chandler, a guest at the party, are Navy buddies. Brady, 19, and Bill, 17, each had enlisted in the Navy in December 1943. They met at Union Station, St. Louis, while waiting to board the train for boot training at Farragut, Idaho. They were together all during World War II, serving aboard the aircraft carrier USS Thetis Bay. They became good friends and saw a lot of action together during World War II. They have kept on touch since being discharged May 1946.

Basketball practice opens with high hopes

Warriors led by Smith twins Trojans hope to do it again Devils minus Johnson early

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

All three local high school basketball teams had winning seasons last winter. Practice opened Monday with high hopes once again for all three.

The Warriors began their third season under Bill Ohlendorf with 31 players at the first workout. "Obviously, there are a few here who won't last too long," said Ohlendorf. "But their enthusiasm is always appreciated."

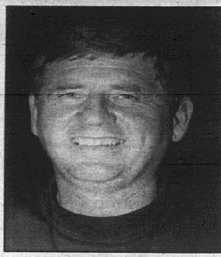

A few who definitely do belong are 6-9 senior twins Jeff and Brian Smith, 6-4 senior Drake Marshall and 6-2 senior John Cozart. Those four are likely starters when the season opens Dec. 6 at home against Triad.

"If I had to say right now, I think (Dan) Askins and Larry Mosby would be competing for the fifth starting spot," said Ohlendorf, 23-28 in two seasons. Askins is a 6-0 senior and Mosby is a 5-8 sophomore. Mosby transferred in from Venice this year and is the cousin of Reno Mosby, perhaps the area's finest point guard last year at Venice.

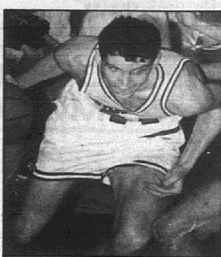

Larry Mosby has always been near the ability of his cousin, he will be a fine addition. Another possible addition could be 5-10 senior transfer Michael Dochwat. He has the quickness, as he showed during football season. He also had previous staying eligible, playing in only six of the 10 football games.

Ohlendorf will miss departed seniors Bob Thomas, Skip Birdsong, Jeff Stephens, Jay Robertson, Rafi Karibian and Rob Terrell. But Marshall should be much more of a factor this winter. He came in from Alhouth at mid-season last year and never really got into the flow of things. He averaged only 6.2 points in 12 games.

The Warriors were 14-12 in 1991, but they had hoped for more. If the twins raise their game another level and the rest of the team rounds into shape with Marshall leading the way, 20 wins is not impossible. Collinsville, led by Richard Keene, is everyone's choice in the Southwestern Conference. But second place is very attainable and the Warriors will get two cracks at the Kahoks, whom they haven't beaten since the 1986-87 season.

Bill Ohlendorf

Brian Smith

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

Venice had owned Madison in basketball for five years, but the Trojans changed all that last winter.

First, they came from behind to beat the Devils 73-66 on Dec. 18, then made it official with a 72-61 win over their archrivals in the Duplo Regional final Feb. 22. Madison went 20-8, but lost a heartbreaking 82-81 decision to Effingham St. Anthony in the Charleston Super-Sectional on March 5 after breaking out to a 19-point lead in the first half.

Fourth-year coach Al Collins has brought steady improvement, and the once-proud Trojans almost came all the way back to the state tournament last year. Collins was 4-19 his first year, 13-12 the next and 20-8 last season for a 37-39 career mark.

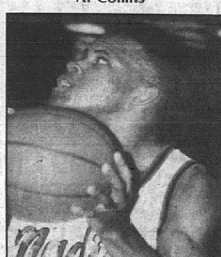

Collins said there were more than 30 players out at the first practice Monday, but eligibility problems could again take their toll. "These kids just don't seem to be into education," he said. "This team has the talent to be as good as last year. But I have my doubts about how many of them can stay eligible each week."

Much of the good work last year was done by departed seniors Andre Mays (20.9 points per game) and Antonio Smith (13.9 points, 10.8 rebounds).

Mays is at Valencia Community College in Orlando, Fla., and Smith is at Florissant Valley Community College with ex-Venice guard Reno Mosby. Another 1991 graduate, guard Brennan Wimberly, is at Shorter Community College in Little Rock, Ark. But 6-1 guard Ron Lott came on late in his junior season to average 11.2 points per game. He had 25 in the super-sectional and wasn't shy about putting up three-points (36 for 131). Lott will need some help from fellow seniors Cernyn Macon and Willie Woodson along with juniors Ron Williams and Doug Griggs. "I hope Lott can be a leader, but I'm not even sure about his grades," said Collins. The Trojans open the season with a home game Nov. 30 against Northwest High School of St. Louis.

Al Collins

Ron Lott

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

For anyone who's not sure how much they like basketball at Venice High School, consider this: There were almost as many players (301) out on the first day of practice as there were in Granite City (31). Venice has a student body of approximately 2,000 fewer than Granite City.

In some years, almost every male student at VHS has at least shown up on the first day of practice. There are some jobs to fill this year after the Red Devils went 24-5 last season. Erwin Claggett is at St. Louis University, while point guard Reno Mosby and forward Winston Webb also graduated.

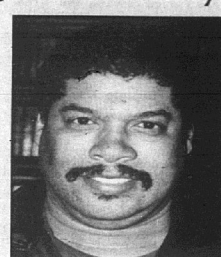

The top returning starter is 6-6, 200-pound senior center Marcus Franklin, who averaged 12.8 points and 11.7 rebounds as a junior.

Marcus has put a little weight on and gotten stronger," said ninth-year coach Clinton Harris Jr.

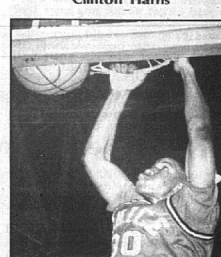

Harris has an amazing 182-45 record (.805) in his eight years with the Devils, including the Class A state title in 1987. But the varsity will be inexperienced to start the season. Senior 6-3 forward Ivan Johnson, who is the top returning scorer with 16.4 points a game last year (to go with 7.9 rebounds), is academically ineligible until the second semester begins Jan. 13.

Ben McIntyre, a 6-4 senior, and 5-10 senior Johnathon Love are the other returning varsity players, but Harris said some sophomores might see some playing time. The faces change, but Harris always has his teams running and playing solid defense. Venice, which opens the season at home Dec. 3 against Freeburg, can be counted on to be competitive at the least and formidable at best.

NOTES: Claggett, ever the

shooter, put up 11 shots in only 13 minutes of play in his St. Louis U. debut. He was 3 for 11 and scored seven points as the Billies lost 73-67 to the Spirit Express in an exhibition game Saturday at the Arena. SLU hosts the Bayreuth Basketball Club of Germany in another exhibition this Saturday.

Jeff Smith signs with Valparaiso

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

For Jeff Smith, the decision was easy.

Smith, the Warrior basketball team's 6-9 senior center, signed his letter of intent Wednesday to play college basketball at Valparaiso University in Indiana.

"I never visit any other school," said Smith. "We went up there and liked what we saw right away. The team was like a family."

There's still a chance one of his teammates will be family. Twin brother Brian will likely wait until the spring to make his college choice. Valparaiso, a member of the Association of Mid-Continent Universities, is still a possibility for Brian.

"But I might end up playing against him," Jeff said of his brother.

That could create a problem for Floyd and Betty Smith, the twins' parents. Their sons have always been on the same team. They will be for at least one more year in high school.

"We're really pleased with Valparaiso," said Floyd Smith. "If I had mapped (the recruiting process) out on paper before it started, I think this is exactly how I would have liked to see it come out."

Valparaiso is ranked second in the Midwest in terms of academics. Jeff Smith said he wasn't sure what his major would be, but he will probably minor in criminology.

"The recruiting wasn't too bad," said Jeff. "It seemed all the coaches would call on the same night. It's a strange process, but I'm glad it's over."

Jeff said Valparaiso coach Homer Drew has indicated he will play center, which Jeff pre-

No word yet on Richard Keene

Richard Keene escaped the madness surrounding him last weekend by following the Collinsville High School soccer team to the state tournament in St. Charles.

But today the madness is probably at its peak. The first day to sign an early letter of intent, Wednesday, has passed, and Keene is still undecided between Illinois and Duke.

The early signing period ends next Wednesday. Keene, a Kahok guard who is one of the top senior basketball players in the country, has said he wants to sign early to better focus on the high school basketball season ahead.

Collinsville coach Bob Bone, acting as a spokesman for Keene and his family, says he has no insight as to when Keene will make his decision or what his choice will be.

fiers over forward.

"He said I'll get whatever playing time I earn," said Jeff. St. Louis University, Montana State, Missouri-Rolla and Northern Illinois had also expressed interest, but Valparaiso was the clear choice.

That's about as far away from home as I wanted to go," J. Smith said. "I know coach (Bill Ohlendorf) is happy with this."

Ohlendorf said most area high school coaches have been a little more impressed with Brian than Jeff so far. But college coaches are waiting to see how Brian does as a senior.

Jeff Smith signs his letter of intent with Valparaiso University on Wednesday as GCHS basketball coach Bill Ohlendorf (left) and Smith's parents, Betty and Floyd, look on.

Park district banquet tonight

The Granite City Park District's 32nd Annual Sports Award Banquet will be held Thursday at the Granite City Township Hall.

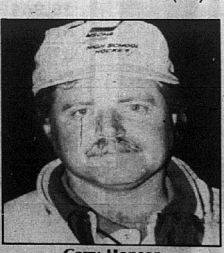

Trophies will be awarded to the league and playoff winners in the park district's baseball, ponyball, softball and flag football programs, as well as the resident tennis tournament. Service awards will be given to a coach and manager in the program and the Appreciation Award will be presented to an individual in the community who has done something special for the park district.

The guest speaker for the evening will be sportscaster Bill Davis of KTVI-TV (Channel 2). Also making his usual appearance will be Granite City native Dal Maxwell, general manager of the Cardinals.

Davis joined KTVI in 1976 after several sportscasting jobs in Wisconsin. He attended the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point and played varsity football there.

Since coming to St. Louis, Davis has been honored with an Emmy Award in 1982 for outstanding achievement in sports reporting, as well as three United Press International first-place awards for sports reporting.

Garry Henson

Henson reflects on 9 years

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

Sometimes the talent was there. Sometimes the talent was thin. But Garry Henson always sent a competitive hockey team out on the ice.

Henson retired this summer after nine years coaching the Granite City High School hockey team. He has been succeeded by Jake Hinterser. As the Warriors prepare to begin the post-Henson era Saturday, the former coach paused to reflect on his tenure. "It's been nine years of fun," he said. "It was time to give it up, but I enjoyed every minute.

The players were what made it fun."

The Warriors enjoyed their glory years in the mid-1980s. Players like Chris Carden, Matt Laub, Dave Yurkovich, Mark Doneff and Ray Romine, twice advanced to the Mid-States Club Hockey Association final four. They took fourth in 1984 and second in 1985.

"There were great players everywhere in those years," said Henson. "The talent has gone down a little since then. You don't have the kids now who have played since they were 4 or

Dave Whaley

Don't look far for role models

It's not often I turn this column into a sermon, so let's keep it brief.

One of America's greatest living sports heroes has tested positive for the HIV virus which causes AIDS. How long he remains a living sports hero is anyone's guess.

Much has been written and spoken in the last week about how much of a greater hero Earls Johnson has become since he made his announcement. If his quick and frank disclosure helps one person save his life, he has certainly done some good.

But it shouldn't be necessary for a basketball player all of us know — though most of us have never actually met him — to make us aware of the dangers out there waiting to get us. If there's one thing I've heard more than anything in the past week, it's that "it could happen to any of us."

Well, no it can't, at least not the way it happened to the NBA's all-time assist king. Johnson might not know exactly when he contracted the virus, but he knows how and he told us. Now everyone is running around scared. Magic has touched a nerve in a way Rock Hudson or Liberace never could.

I guess that's good, but again — it shouldn't be necessary. Call me old-fashioned, or a prude, or anything else you want. While millions of people are worried, I'm not ashamed to say that I have nothing to be worried about. I hope like heck I never get a bad blood transfusion anytime in the future. But, unless all the medical evidence is wrong, that's the only way I could ever be infected.

Is my thinking that far off when I believe that abstinence and monogamy are simple ways of keeping the AIDS virus in check? Is the moral fiber of our society that far out of whack?

Sadly, it is. Kids admire athletes. Certainly, millions of kids have admired Magic Johnson from his years at Michigan State through all the championships in Los Angeles. For the most part, he has been someone good to admire. He will almost certainly be someone to listen to, now more than ever.

(See WHALEY, Page 2B)

Henson

5 years old. A lot of them now have only been playing a couple years.

"I don't think my 1985 team would have lost a game the last three years in this league."

Henson thinks talent will be on the upswing in the future. The success of the Blues usually has a direct bearing on interest in youth hockey in this area. The high school players of the mid-80s were products of the hockey craze which swept the area when the Blues first entered the National Hockey League.

Henson went to Kirkwood High School and moved to Granite City in 1979. He had coached at Hazelwood East. Harold Dix and Jack Mulach got the program started in Granite City in 1978 along with Jake Higgins, Steve Doneff and Bob Weckbach carried on until Henson took over in 1982.

In addition to the 1985 group, Henson remembers players like Bill Schreiber, Ron Snelson, Billy Moore, Steve Schmelev, Matt Krekovich, Richie Grogan, Tommy Brown, Collins Harlan and Tom and Matt Schefke. Topping them all was defenseman Todd Hinterser, who graduated in 1987.

"I could get into listing my top players at each position, but I would forget some and hurt feelings," Henson said. "But I think most everyone would agree that Todd was the best we had. He could almost always anticipate what would happen on the ice. You don't see his anticipation in many high school players."

One other player of Hinterser's era was Garry Henson, the coach's son. The fact that the fathers and sons are involved together is not accident.

"Hockey is the perfect family participation sport," said Henson. "Garry was 4 when he started skating. If I had a nickel for every dollar I spent on Garry's equipment and for every mile I drove him to games and practices, I could quit my job right now."

Henson's wife, Ginny, has also been involved not only with the Granite City program but with the league. She is on the board of directors and serves as the North Division commissioner.

"I'll probably forget some people," said Henson.

He mentioned former assistant coaches Steve Dioneda and Jerry Roderick, assistant coach and trainer Ray Romine, plus Dave Nolan, Steve Kessel and Gary Ford of the Granite City Park District. The Granite City Jaycees also have contributed financially to the program.

"Ice time is at a premium in the area," said Henson. "But the park we always good to us in that regard."

But above all, it was the players.

"We always gave every player the opportunity," said Henson. "We never cut anyone. We created a JV team so some kids who could barely stand up on skates had a chance to play."

Other teams didn't do it that way, but we did. "The talent has been down a little in recent years, but you still have players now like Mike Jaros and Nathan Weaver. The amateur program here is doing a good job, and I think the talent will really start to pick up at the high school level very soon."

LeVault sets school record at AU

Tammy LeVault, a 1988 graduate of Granite City High School, set a new Aurora (Ill.) University volleyball record with 34 kills in a game recently.

LeVault had set the old record earlier this year with 28, then established the new mark during the Spartans' 11-15, 15-9, 11-15, 16-14, 11-15 loss at Trinity College on Oct. 31.

LeVault, a senior hitter, is a team captain. Aurora finished the season with a 15-16 overall record, 7-3 in the Northern Illinois Intercollegiate Conference. Aurora and Trinity finished in a tie for second in the NIIC.

But obviously, his actions haven't always been 100 percent virtuous or he wouldn't be in the spot he is today.

Yeah, I still have sympathy for him and the millions of others afflicted. But, as we often like to say in sports, many of them "controlled their own destiny." Most everyone accepts a certain lifestyle, but at what cost?

Athletes are role models. Some of them are good ones. I could make a guess at who a few of them are, but even then I would only be assuming. I don't know every little thing about the private lives of any of them.

Should athletes be role models? No.

Thomas Henderson was a line-backer for the Dallas Cowboys in the 1970s and early 1980s. Early in his career, he acquired the nickname "Hollywood" for his flamboyant behavior—some of it on the field but most of it off the field. His story was all too common. He was caught up in the fast lane in general and the drug scene in particular. He was a very good linebacker, but his excesses brought his playing career to a premature finish.

He wrote a book about it after he had gotten himself straightened out. Hollywood Henderson should not be anyone's role model, and he knew it. Something he said while promoting his book has stuck with me over the years.

"When kids are looking for role models," said Henderson, "it's said when they have to look any farther than right across the kitchen table."

Amen.

Steve Whaley is the sports editor of the Press-Record.

Persistence keyed success of creator of Waterbabies

By Roger McGrath
Correspondent

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. And an Easter Bunny. And a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. Just ask Dan Lauer.

Waterbabies, the lifelike doll developed by Clayton-based Lauer Toys, will be one of the best-selling items of the current Christmas season, toy industry sources say. Retailers have ordered 2.8 million Waterbabies, roughly triple the number necessary to consider a first-time doll a success, Lauer says.

At the wholesale price of $13.60 per doll, Lauer Toys stands to harvest, at the standard toy industry royalty fee of 5 percent, a $1.9 million windfall.

The ride to the top of the toy box wasn't smooth. In the spring of 1990, in fact, Lauer considered abandoning the Waterbabies project and returning to earning a paycheck in a more mundane manner.

New business failures are common in the toy industry. Then there's the recession which has boosted the overall failure rate to its highest level since the Great Depression, reports Dun & Bradstreet Corp. Twice as many businesses—more than 50,000—failed in the first seven months of 1991 as in the same period in 1990, which also was a time of rising failures.

New toy companies rarely survive the highly competitive market that's dominated by the big outfits with the big advertising budgets, such as Mattel and Hasbro.

Lauer's company teetered on the brink of failure many times. "We could have gone broke hundreds of times," the University City resident says.

But his persistence finally put Waterbabies on toy retailers' shelves, say two of Lauer's investors, his mother, Betty Bosung, and attorney George Martin.

Dan Lauer's journey into toy land began as a youngster, when his sisters would put a diaper on water-filled balloons and draw a face on the homemade doll.

The concept resurfaced in late 1987 when the restless banker, then 27, decided to try his luck as a toy manufacturer.

Registers chimed with Waterbabies sales—15,000 sold in just six weeks—and set off a chain of unexpected events.

The big toy companies, however, weren't interested, a message he finally got after sending more than 100 unanswered letters to Mattel, 75 to Hasbro. His conclusion: They're only interested in a proven product.

Lauer immersed himself in the toy business, reading the trade magazines, visiting with anyone who would listen, Martin, who read about Lauer's crusade in a local weekly newspaper, telephoned the young executive and suggested Lauer quit the bank and devote his effort full-time to Waterbabies. Lauer did.

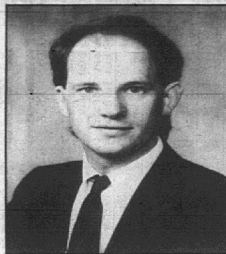

In 1989, Lauer went to Asia in search of a factory to produce 10,000 dolls. It took him six months to realize that factory owners wouldn't spend the money needed to retool for such a small run, he says.

By March 1990, his bank account and his enthusiasm were nearly exhausted. "I had my resume done. I was looking for a job," he recalls. But until he actually found a job, he was committed to pushing Waterbabies for 40 hours a week.

Persistence paid off. He gave a new version of the doll to a local toy representative, who offered it to Venture Stores. The toy buyer wasn't interested but, at the salesman's suggestion, took it home where his kids fought over it, Lauer says.

A doll was born. Venture agreed to put 500 units in St. Louis area stores for Christmas 1990 if Lauer Toys promoted Waterbabies with a television commercial. Lauer agreed to that condition, a step that convinced several other retailers, including Target, Toys R Us and Kaybee, to stock his doll.

Registers chimed with Waterbabies sales—15,000 sold in just six weeks—and set off a chain of unexpected events.

Daniel J. Lauer

When Lauer arrived in Hong Kong for a January toy fair, he found himself in demand. Factory managers who'd sent him packing two years earlier were eager to talk. So were the top executives of Mattel, Hasbro and Playmates, who in the course of one day, wine and dined the young St. Louisan.

"It was all because of the retail sales," he says.

After a flurry of faxes, he signed a licensing agreement with Playmates. Best known for its Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles line, the Hong Kong toy maker told Lauer that Waterbabies would fill an important gap in the Playmates line, a doll for girls.

"It's one of the top dolls for the Christmas season," says Frank Reysen, editor of Playthings, a trade magazine. "The retailers like it a lot" because, when filled with water, the doll "is very realistic," an important selling feature today, he adds.

Those sales will yield royalty payments to Lauer Toys, which, in turn, will pay dividends to its 35 investors, says Lauer, who notes that his job has changed. No longer the struggling entrepreneur, "now my job is to manage the success of the company."

A Waterbabies doll line rests comfortably in its crib.

Book on Madison history available to local agencies

Madison native Ron Stern, author of "A Centennial History of Madison, Ill. 1891-1991," has autographed copies of his new book for Madison Mayor John N. Bellcove and John E. Lee III, president, The First National Bank in Madison.

Lee and his bank's public relations staff had responsibility for the development and printing of the book. It will be distributed free of charge, by the bank, to area libraries, colleges and universities, historical societies, and all school district offices in the Madison/St. Clair counties area.

Nobbe honored for leadership

Colonial Mutual Funds, a Boston-based mutual funds company, has named Dennis Nobbe to its 1991 Leadership Council.

Nobbe was awarded the firm's silver medal for outstanding achievement and professionalism in providing investment services to his clients.

Nobbe, a resident of Glen Carbon, has been an investment professional for more than five years.

Currently, Nobbe is a branch manager with Linco/Private Ledger in Granite City. He is an active member of the community and a member of the Granite City Rotary Club and Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

Jeffrey McGregor, Colonial executive vice president, said, "We are pleased to recognize Dennis for developing strong relationships with his clients by providing solid investment advice in all economic climates."

"It is important to acknowledge those individuals in the industry who, like Dennis, maintain high standards of excellence."

2 SEMC departments mark 30 years of care

Two departments at St. Elizabeth Medical Center are celebrating their 30th anniversary — Physical Therapy and Recovery Room.

It was July 1961 when Jackie Haug, supervisor of Physical Therapy, came to SEMC. "When I came here not too many people knew a lot about PT," Haug said. "Eventually the medical staff learned through Dr. Bart Cole and myself of its importance. It took time, but he was already here and had the trust of the medical staff. They said if he used it, it must be OK."

The first PT Department was developed with much help from Sister Mary Thomas, current SEMC board chairman. She had classes with Jackie at St. Louis University and was persistent in getting her to agree to come to SEMC to begin the PT Department.

"Sister Mary Thomas went to program training to find out about equipment," Jackie said. "That really was important. The equipment was very adequate when I got here in the department. But the area was not the best."

"Our first location, on the fourth floor of the West Wing, had three rooms which were separated by curtains," Jackie said. "I was the only one in the department and there was no way to tell what was happening in the next room while I was attending someone in another. One room had four treatment tables, the second had parallel bars, and two whirlpool tubs were in the third."

The department had no air conditioning the first summer and no telephone for the first three weeks.

"We needed a phone I had to run to Pediatrics. When I did get a phone in the department it was restricted to in-house use only," she said.

In October, Rose Bruemmer was hired to help, and most of the problems were reduced. But one remained: filling the whirlpool tubs.

"We had to fill the whirlpools with hoses from the sink. It would take about 30 minutes each time. Since there were only two of us, we had to continue working with other patients while the tub filled. Needless to say, we overflowed the whirlpool a few times. We got a lot of mopping experience," Jackie said.

The rooms also were not wired sufficiently.

"We were continuously running upstairs to reset the breaker after we plugged in and used too many pieces of equipment. Finally, we sat down and figured out how much electricity each piece of equipment needed and knew exactly how much we could plug in at a time," she said.

The second summer, air conditioning was added. Duct work lined one side of the hallway leading to surgery. We were the first area closed to the unit, so we got the most air. There was no way to control the amount of air, so we froze.

Appointed at-home care supervisor

Colleen Berends, referral Community Nurse Association coordinator for At-Home Care, has been appointed as supervisor of the department.

Berends has been an associate at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, Granite City, in the Home Health department for 10 years.

She graduated in 1972 from Granite City High School and is a certified nurse aide. She currently resides in Edwardsville.

"PT was moved to the ground floor 11 years later, in 1972. It was like the Taj Mahal," she said. "It was very modern and designed for a functional physical therapy department. The first week we kept commenting that we would run ourselves to death with all the new space. In our old department we only needed to take two steps and we would reach whatever we needed."

"There was some new equipment which complemented advancements in the field. We still use the original parallel bars in stroke rehab and we have the original exercise tables."

"The staff has grown too. We had about seven on staff when we moved. Now there are more than 35, only they are not in one area."

"We're at Anderson Hospital, the Wellness Center (Cybex), on the 3rd floor with the Neuro Rehab Inpatient Unit, and our Outpatient services on the ground floor."

"One physical therapist is assigned to Home Health full time and a lot of other therapists contribute hours with Home Health."

For National Physical Therapy Week, Oct. 7-13, associates in PT ordered special T-shirts to wear.

For their 30th anniversary, Recovery Room associates celebrated with a covered dish dinner.

The Recovery Room began the same month as PT, July 1961. The two departments were located next door to each other on the fourth floor of the West Wing.

"On fourth floor, we had about one-fourth the space we have now," Rosie Koziol, nurse supervisor, said.

"There was no air conditioning, so we used IV (intravenous) poles to prop open the windows. We had one oxygen tank, one EKG (electrocardiogram) monitor and one suction machine, so if the Recovery Room was overcrowded, we had to set priorities on equipment usage according to patient needs."

"There were no cubicals to separate patients and, on occasion, we had patients in the doorways because there was no available space."

At that time, the Recovery Room staff consisted of one registered nurse and one licensed practical nurse, and since there was no on-call arrangement, they worked until the schedule was completed.

When the Doctors Wing was built in 1972, they moved to a new location on the first floor.

"Now we have invasive and non-invasive monitoring equipment at each station, and additional space and staff to accommodate all patients. This makes things much easier," Koziol said.

Through its 30 years at SEMC, Koziol said, she has seen surgery procedures and anesthesia techniques change a great deal.

"With technological advancements and the type of patients we have, recovery rooms are a smaller version of the Critical Care Unit," she said.

"I'm really excited about taking over the position of supervisor"

It is going to be a challenge, Berends said. "My goals as supervisor will be to continue our growth in the areas of respite care and sitting services."

At-Home Care, a sub-unit of Home Health, provides professional care and comfort to clients in need of extended personal home care.

Morrison come alive in new videos

By Mason Wiley
Correspondent

Jim Morrison refuses to go away. Although the singer died in 1971, his biography "No One Here Gets Out Alive," by Danny Sugarmen and Jerry Hopkins, went to the top of the best-seller list in 1980, the record "The Doors Greatest Hits" went double-platinum in 1981, and this year, there are five videos devoted to his music and the idolatry that surrounded him.

Oliver Stone's "The Doors" (1991, Live, $92.98) is the romanticized Hollywood account of Morrison's life. As usual, Stone is interested in commenting on the whole of American culture in the late '60s, and in Morrison, he has the personification of the generation gap. Parents were outraged over the sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll that the Doors embodied, and Stone depicts all of it in gory detail.

The band's infamous appearance on the "Ed Sullivan Show," when the network wanted Morrison to sing "Girl, it couldn't get much better" instead of "Girl, we couldn't get much higher" during "Light My Fire," is presented as low comedy, with Sullivan himself parodied by a stiff-faced look-alike.

Stone's treatment of women is typically ungentlemanly, particularly with the miscast Meg Ryan as Morrison's girlfriend, the one he locks in a closet and then sets the closet door on fire. More interesting is the viper journalist played by Kathleen Quinlan, though Stone's presentation of her makes her come off as the most evil vamp in movies since Theda Bara.

As Morrison, Val Kilmer does a reasonable impersonation, but it's doubtful his character could capture the rock star's extraordinary charisma.

Glenn Headly, left, and Demi Moore find their friendship and mortality on the line when a murder investigation closes in on them in "Mortal Thoughts."

One of the biggest critics of Stone's film biography is the Doors' keyboardist, Ray Manzarek, who said, "Oliver Stone has missed the whole point of the Doors. He made Jim Morrison a drunk and a jerk and reduced the Doors to a peripheral place in the story." To redress this inaccuracy, Manzarek has directed two videos about the group.

"The Doors Live in Europe, 1968" (1991, A/Vision Entertainment, $19.91), co-directed with Manzarek by Paul Jusman and Doors drummer John Densmore, is an hour-long black-and-white record of the band's tour through London, Stockholm, Frankfurt and Amsterdam. Introducing the material in a color segment are Grace Slick and Paul Kantner of the Jefferson Airplane, who toured with the band. "Amsterdam looked like San Francisco," said Slick. "When we walked down the street, people came up to us and offered us drugs. Jim took everything he was given on the spot." As a result, Morrison stumbled out on stage during the Airplane's opening set, then collapsed backstage and was unable to perform. Manzarek sang the vocals in his stead.

The video includes 10 songs, ending with Morrison's rendition of Kurt Weill and Bertolt Brecht's "Alabama Song" over footage of his grave in Paris. Manzarek is the sole director of "Doors: The Soft Parade—A Retrospective" (1991, MCA/Universal, $19.95), a 50-minute hodgepodge of color and black-and-white memorabilia and seven songs. Much of it shows the standard stuff of rock life—airports, limos, stage entrances and recording sessions.

No one wore a pair of leather pants better than Morrison, who muses on the link between poems and lyrics in his last televised appearance in 1969. The interview was on PBS, the only network that would showcase the Doors after Morrison was arrested for indecent exposure during a notorious Miami concert.

For those who can't get enough, MCA/Universal is rereleasing "The Doors: Dance on Fire" (1985) and "The Doors: Live at the Hollywood Bowl" (1987) for $19.95 each. "Dance on Fire" contains 14 songs culled from television and concert appearances, and "Hollywood Bowl" is the only full-length performance of the Doors on film, recorded July 5, 1968.

MCA/Universal is offering all three videos as "The Doors: Collector's Set" for $59.95. If the Doors' frenetic style of music is too much for you, relax with "Tropical Sweets" (1991, Classical Video Concepts, Inc., $19.95, 800-456-8899), a 40-minute slice of classical music played against pretty pictures of nature in Florida and outer space (courtesy of NASA).

The video begins with Delius' "Daybreak," continues with Saint-Saens' "The Swan," Mendelssohn's "Calm Sea," Rimsky-Korsakov's "Flight of the Bumblebee," Respighi's "Aurora," Delius' "Sunset," and concludes with a trip through the cosmos to the strains of Beethoven's "Moonlight." The video lulls just as assuredly as Jim Morrison excites.

Best Bets
"Mortal Thoughts" (1991, RCA/Columbia, no suggested price): A dead husband does not come back, a "ghost" in this Demi Moore thriller in which she and her best friend (Glenn Headly) have to dispose of the corpse of an obnoxious spouse (played by Moore's real-life husband Bruce Willis).
